The Sustainable Table: Reasons and Resources with Terese Allen

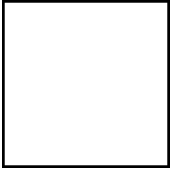

Contemporary concerns about health, the environment, animal welfare, social justice, and national security have created a groundswell of interest in alternative agriculture and diet. On Thursday, April 25th at 6 p.m., Allen explores the pleasures and benefits of sustainable eating and offers resources for those who want to eat more responsibly and deliciously. She clarifies terms like “eco-gastronomy,” “food shed” and “food miles” and explains why and how more and more people are supporting small-scale, organic food production and practicing local, seasonal cooking. Illustrating

Wisconsin as a leader in the sustainable foods movement, Allen details such phenomena as subscription farms, community gardens, local food challenges, sustainable restaurants, agritourism, and eco-labeling. Information on local resources will be provided, making the link from consumer to regionally produced foods.

Terese Allen, a native of Green Bay, has written scores of books and articles about the pleasures and benefits of regional foods, sustainable cooking, and culinary folklore. Allen serves as food editor and columnist for Organic Valley Family of Farms, the country's largest organic farmers' cooperative, and is a food columnist and editorial consultant for Edible Madison magazine.

Both the annual meeting and Sustainable Table program are open to the public and all are welcome and encouraged to attend!

Another Successful Seuss Extravaganza

Despite a winter snowstorm on March 5th, the annual Read Across America birthday celebration for Dr. Seuss was a huge success! Goodsearch!

Goodsearch is an organization that donates money to your cause every time you use it to do a web search or to shop through its website. The Friends of the Library registered last year and to date over $160 has been raised. To participate, begin by visiting <http://www.goodsearch.com>. Choose your cause – “Friends of the Ripon Public Library”. There is no need to register! Conduct a search or click on “goodshop” at the top of the screen to get to the list of stores that participate.
